

Gregory Witul Historian

Gregory Witul is a Western New York based historian whose focus is art and ethnic communities. Educated at the University at Buffalo and Niagara University, Mr. Witul reached national acclaim after his 2007 discovery of the missing Maria Sk³odowska-Curie Medallion and coordinated its return to the University at Buffalo. Since then Witul has written a book on the stained glass of Polish-American parish, Corpus Christi and a number of scholarly articles including one recently on Polish-American architect Wladyslaw H. Zawadzki. Since 2012 Mr. Witul has written a weekly article, Babcia's Closet, for the Polish-American weekly Am-Pol Eagle which covers historic objects of Polonia. In June of 2014 Greg began writing a new column "Polonia Places" for the monthly Polish-American Journal which explores the historic locations of Polish America.
